

Veterinary Technology Alternative students

With the ever-changing situation in Ontario, we wanted to give you an update on our expected plan for the Summer 2021 semester. Though additional restrictions were added to the Stay-at-Home order, in-person teaching for essential practical learning is permitted to continue, provided that face-to-face situations do not exceed groups of 10 students. As such, your in-person labs will be limited to groups of 10 until we are allowed to larger groups.

At this time, we will proceed with the May 3rd semester start date. As indicated, labs will be delivered in groups of 10 students and lectures will be delivered virtually. As safety is our top priority, we will continue to consult with the experts at Chatham Kent Public Health and adhere to their recommendations.

We understand that circumstances are different for all students and therefore strongly encourage you to reach out should you have any questions, concerns or need additional clarification or support.

Understanding that this is a fluid situation, we wanted to express our greatest thanks for your continued patience and understanding.

Stay safe and stay well,

Sincerely,

Simon
