Veterinary Technology Students Ready for Academic Studies

L-R: Liphayette Hilado, Anneke Lansink and Teegan Towers are all in the first year of the Veterinary Technology (Alternative Delivery) Diploma program at Ridgetown Campus.

Sixty-six University of Guelph, Ridgetown Campus students arrived on campus on Monday, May 5, 2014 to begin their summer semester of the Veterinary Technology (Alternative Delivery) Diploma program. The students will be completing seven or eight academic courses over the next thirteen weeks.

During their first two days on campus they participated in a welcome barbeque, purchased textbooks, and became familiar with class locations.

These students have completed distance education courses during their fall and winter semesters, and are now on campus until the end of July to complete laboratory and lecture requirements. They will spend three consecutive summers on campus as part of their program.

We wish them all much success in their studies while living in the Ridgetown community for the next three months.
